

Maggie Moore '06
ESG & Impact Investing

Maggie has committed her career to driving social impact through capital markets. In her 12+ years at Goldman Sachs, she has worked in various entrepreneurial roles to innovate impact investing opportunities in both public and private markets and bring them to a range of sophisticated investors around the world.

In her most recent role within Goldman Sachs Asset Management (GSAM), she built a team and platform dedicated to identifying ESG risks and best practices at public companies, leveraging GS's ability to access company management teams to encourage higher corporate standards.

Previously, Maggie led capital raising and investor relations for the Firm's Impact Investing platform. She helped lead the GS Social Impact Fund, a first of its kind vehicle investing in underserved communities in the US. She also drove marketing for the Women's Entrepreneur Opportunity Facility, the first-ever global finance facility for women-owned small and medium enterprises created through a partnership between GS 10,000 Women and the World Bank's International Finance Corporation (IFC). In this capacity, she spent time with local banks and entrepreneurs in Accra, Ghana and Quito, Ecuador.

Prior to this, Maggie spent several years in GSAM, coordinating ESG business strategy and activities across the business globally. She managed relationships across the investment management industry in London and New York, including with GSAM's institutional clients in the Nordic and UK markets, and led the Firm's process to sign the UN-backed Principles of Responsible Investment (UNPRI).

Maggie is a passionate advocate for women, health, and fitness. A long distance runner, she participates in races to raise awareness for non-profits focused on empowering and enfranchising women and girls through entrepreneurship and sports education. She earned a BA in Business Economics, magna cum laude, from Providence College.
